FUNERAL SERVICES HELD
FOR COL. JOHN A. JOYCEMasons in Charge of Rites for Poet—
Soldier-Philosopher—Friends
Pay Tribute.

JOHN A. JOYCE

To voices of nature, make softer your tune!
A comrade has passed from our daily communion. A man who to nature and man was a friend,
Ever ready his strength to the needy to lend.
The strains from Parnassus were sweet to his ear,
And live in his verses of beauty and cheer.
The songs of the rights of the lowly he sang,
And, true to his heart, ever bravely he rang.

No more may we list to his musical speech
And salutes of wit to the points he would reach.
The angels have met him and sped him away,
To rest in the brightness of heavenly day.
How much we will miss him whenever we meet,
As voices unseen seem his songs to repeat!
God bless him and make all eternity's days
For him one grand anthem of glory and praise!

THOMAS CALVERT.

Funeral services for Col. John A. Joyce, poet, soldier, and for many years, one of Washington's most unique and beloved figures, who died in this city Monday, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the funeral parlors at 1715 14th street. The services were in charge of Columbia Lodge, No. 3, F. A. M. Besides members of the lodge and members of Kit Carson Post of the Grand Army of the Republic, and members of the District of Columbia Commandery of the Loyal Legion, hundreds of the dead man from all walks of life were present to pay tribute to one who for so many years had been so prominent here.

Loyal Legion Represented.

Besides chosen representatives of the Grand Army post, the following acted as honorary pallbearers from the Loyal Legion: Capt. William Emerson, Capt. A. H. G. Richardson, Lieut. H. C. Pearson and Lieut. Sheridan Perrow.

Following the services the cortege proceeded to Oak Hill cemetery, where Col. Joyce recently had his tombstone erected, and here the soldier-poet was laid to rest, and the vacant line on the stone filled in until now the inscription reads as follows:

"JOHN A. JOYCE
"Poet, Soldier, Philosopher
"Born July 4, 1842
"Died January 18, 1915."

John A. Joyce—In Memoriam.

A warrior true, at last he fell
Upon that mighty field of strife
Where battles rage, and ever will
While man is man and life is life.

But not o'erwhelmed nor put to shame—
With sword in hand his guard he kept,
Quite mindful of his warrior name,
When others fled or weakly wept.

Our country friend, our Col. Joyce,
Who smoothed the path of many a one—
Some thought of him as a poet, some
As a soldier, and some as a man,
And pay our tribute, now he's gone!

Who are life's victors if not they
Who fight unflinchingly to the last?
Who stand up boldly in the fray
And look not back, nor fear the past?

I know, old friend, had I but felt
What gracious words you would have said,
And such kind thoughts in your farewell
I'd give to you, now you are dead.

The sun goes down and darkness reigns,
We cannot see far in the night;
But he the greatest good obtains
Who never falters in the fight.

EVELAND O. KIRK.

COL. JOYCE'S "GOOD NIGHT."

Poet Wrote His Own Epitaph for Publication After Death.

Nearly three years ago Col. John A. Joyce entrusted to a friend an In Memoriam poem on himself, to be given publicly after his death. This was in a sealed envelope, on which was the notation in Col. Joyce's handwriting "Epitaph of Col. John A. Joyce." The verses follow:

GOOD NIGHT!

Good night, for seventy years I walked
This mortal earth, and laughed and talked
And sang my songs of glorious glee
Across the hills and vales and sea
That long shall voice my memory!

Good night, for seventy years I thought
For human joy and ever wrought
To make the world more bright and gay
By striving powers along the way
And doing good from day to day!

Good night, I go to you Oak Hill
To rest in silence lone and still,
No more to hear the water mill
Or cry of the forest whippoorwill
Or music of the great rill!

JOHN A. JOYCE.

Discusses Social Service Laws.

"Laws Governing Social and Civil Service" was the subject of an address by Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey, honorary dean of the Washington College of Law, she contrasted methods of dealing with delinquent children thirty years ago with those of the present time. The last lecture of the course, "Child Labor Laws and the Minimum Wage," is to be given January 27.

Overtured Lamp Starts Fire.

An overturned oil lamp caused a small fire in the house of Mary Butler, 1818 De Sales row northwest, last night about 8 o'clock, and caused about $5 damage.

DAY AND NIGHT.

(Copyright, 1915, by Dr. Frank Crane.)

Why not alide the day's program back about five hours?
This suggestion is based upon the superior life-value of the early morning hours. The world can do more and better work from 5 to 12 in the morning than from 5 in the afternoon to midnight.

Besides, daylight fun is more wholesome than gaslight fun.
You cannot find anybody with whom to do business until 10 o'clock or so in the downtown offices, as things are today. Let us get down to work at 7 a.m., and quit for the day at noon or 1 p.m.

Let us have theaters and concerts and parties in the afternoon instead of at night.
When dark comes let us go to bed. This is entirely impractical, impossible. Hence most to be desired. The impossible is always more fascinating than the possible.

How did we come to sleep all morning and sit up all night? Why have we reversed nature and artificialized our whole social structure? And why is it considered common, bourgeois and undistinguished to get up with the sun, and upper-tensish and hilarious to get up with the moon?
Think also of economy! How many goddies of dollars we squander in electricity, gas and kerosene, so that we may poke around in the dark, when the Creator gives us for nothing an infinitely better light by day!

What a twisted old world it is! Let's you and me set it right.

But some man will say, how? It's the simplest thing imaginable. We will call a meeting. At the meeting we will draft resolutions. Then we will appoint a committee. Then we will secure the names of a number of prominent people as honorary vice presidents and as an advisory board. Then we will take up a collection. That's all. Then we can go home and think how easy reform is, after all.
